Every Vessel to Be Searched

Coast Guard Cutters Will Stop and Search Every Vessel Approaching New Jersey Coast—Stenographer Charged With "Tipping."

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, April 28.—Coast guard cutters and patrol boats today were preparing to carry out new orders from Washington to stop and search every vessel approaching the New Jersey and Long Island coasts. Thus, said coast guard officers, a veritable blockade will be thrown about the coast in an attempt to halt the importation of contraband liquor.

The prohibition land forces, also began redoubling their efforts following the sensational disclosures that bootleggers had been receiving advance information on dry raids by "listening in" on phone wires from the Syracuse office. Four dry agents in that office have been dismissed by official order, and Miss Cecily Murray, stenographer there, was suspended yesterday.

Divisional Dry Enforcement Chief Merrick said today that Miss Murray was charged with "tipping" bootleggers about proposed raids along the Canadian border.

Officers of the coast guard said that while all fishing boats nearing the coast would be boarded and searched there would be no need molesting. Ocean liners and freighters whose identity is known will not be bothered.

Miss Sage's brother, George, was held as a material witness. Miss Sage told police she and Cantalamo quarreled and that he threatened to kill her when she asked him about his divorce.

France Points to Ruhr Majority

In Answer to Charge of British Premier That Election Was Result of French Policy—French Looks for Obstacles in Dawes System.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, April 28.—That Hindenburg constitutes the greatest menace to the functioning of the Dawes plan, was the general opinion in government circles today. French statesmen were certain that S. Gilbert Parker, agent general of the reparations commission, now will find obstacles thrust in his path which will cut down receipts and thereby cripple the machinery of the plan.

The foreign office stated frankly that even before the election the French government was convinced that the real sentiment of the German people was just what they expressed at the polls, but admitted its great surprise that the Germans dared come out with it.

Indications were that one of the first acts of Hindenburg would be to try to effect a closer relation with France, the foreign office said, but Poland would be excluded from these friendly dealings, which would compel France to have recourse to the Versailles terms.

In answer to the charge of David Lloyd George, former British premier, that the election of Hindenburg was the result of French policy in the Ruhr, the foreign office pointed out that Marx, Hindenburg's opponent, received more than 2,000,000 majority in the Rhineland and Ruhr.

"If America, France and England are surprised at the result of the German election, we have official information that Germany herself is hardly able to believe and understand it," it was stated at the foreign office.

UNITED STATES POSITION BOOM TO AMERICAN THEATRE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, April 28.—The imperialistic position of the United States has caused a boom in the American theatre, declared Kenneth MacGowan, producer of the Provincetown players and "little theatre" advocate, in an interview today.

"With America leading the world in diplomacy, finance and commerce, and with the consciousness of having done great things in the recent war," MacGowan said, "the arts have also been stimulated. The theatre has been the first to feel the effect."

MacGowan said approximately 500 American cities were now producing plays of merit in "little theatres."

"If a play disturbs some persons they think it's wrong," MacGowan said. "A reformer never says a production harms himself but is forever claiming it hurts other people."

Talk to Europe During Daylight

Is Present Experiment of Engineers, Who Believe Telephone Communication Is Commercial Possibility—Sms Affects Voice Waves Broadcast.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, April 28.—Telephone communication by radio between the United States and Europe will be a commercial possibility as soon as engineers overcome the deadening effect of the sun upon voice waves broadcast across the Atlantic, according to officials of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company today.

Telephone conversations with England have been carried on for two years during the night, but so far every attempt during daylight has failed.

Engineers are carrying on experiments daily, it was stated, in an effort to send the same messages during the day as have been sent at night.

According to the company officials, as soon as this one step is made it will be possible for any subscriber in New York to pick up his receiver and be connected with Europe.

This would be done, it was explained, by connecting the local line with a high powered radio station in constant connection with the other side of the water. When this would become an actuality, officials could not be positive.

At present the conversations carried on with England are only one-sided, as the English government sending station has not yet been completed.

Mrs. Ascarini Is Sent to Auburn Prison

Albert Pross Sentenced to Five Months, Fined $200 and License Revoked—Other Judgments in County Court—Recess Until Wednesday.

In county court this morning, several cases were disposed of although no case was taken up for trial. After several cases had been disposed of court went into recess until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, at which time it is expected a case will be taken up. The jurors were excused until that time.

District Attorney Traver moved judgment in the case of the People vs. Caroline Ascarini, convicted last week of assault, second degree in cutting a neighbor at Glasco. Judge Fowler stated that in view of the facts in the case and the recommendation of the jury for clemency he found it hard to determine just what to do in the case.

Mrs. Ascarini had three small children. Usually the sentence for so serious a crime would be a long term in prison but under the circumstances he would consider the recommendation of the jury and sentenced her to an indeterminate term in the Auburn prison for women the minimum of which shall be one year and the maximum two years.

Claims Errors in Trial.

William D. Brinnier, who with Roscoe Ellsworth appeared for the defendant on trial, asked that the verdict of the jury be set aside on several grounds. First, that the verdict was against the weight of the evidence and contrary to law, and further that there were errors made on the trial in the introduction of evidence and also the rebuttal on the part of the district attorney. Also that at the beginning of the trial he had requested that all of the statements made by either himself or the district attorney be taken down as a part of the record and that on the summation he had noticed that when he was nearly through the court stenographer had not taken down the statements but was writing a letter.

He also objected to the manner and statements made by Mr. Traver in summing up his case for The People when he referred to the form of punishment which might be followed by the court. The motion was denied and the court imposed sentence. Mr. Brinnier was allowed until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock to file papers for application for certificate of reasonable doubt and Mrs. Ascarini was remanded to the custody of the sheriff until that time.

Stiff Sentence for Pross.

Judge in the case of Albert Pross, convicted last week of driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated as a second offense, was moved by Mr. Traver. Roscoe Ellsworth moved that the verdict of the jury be set aside on the grounds that it was contrary to the evidence and the law, and on the exceptions taken during the trial. Motion denied.

Judge Fowler imposed a jail sentence of five months, revoked the license to drive and imposed a fine of $200 to be paid to the state and as an alternative defendant will have to spend one day in jail for each $5 of the fine if unpaid. Pross is 42 years old, was born in Germany and is now a citizen of the United States. He was once before convicted of driving a car while intoxicated.

Kime Fined $300.

George V. B. Kime of Saugerties changed his former plea of not guilty to the charge of driving a car while intoxicated and entered a plea of guilty. Judge William D. Brinnier appeared for him. His license was revoked, a fine of $200 to be paid to the state was imposed and he was sentenced to three months in jail, but the jail sentence was suspended during good behavior and on condition he pay to the county of Ulster $100 as the cost of the prosecution of his case. Failure to pay the fine of $200 will mean an additional day in jail for each $5. The execution of the sentence was suspended until June 15 in order to allow him to raise the money. Bail bond was continued until that time.

Mead Fined $50.

William F. Mead, colored, of East Kingston, changed his former plea of not guilty to guilty of the crime charged and a fine of $50 was imposed. Frank W. Brooks appeared for Mead, who paid his fine.

Case Goes Over Term.

The case of The People vs. Michael Pole and John Williams, grand larceny, was put over the term. William D. Brinnier appeared for the defendants, who were jointly indicted. Williams was arraigned at this time of court. They were indicted with two others, who have already pleaded guilty.

Court then went into recess until Wednesday morning.

In Surrogate's Court.

In surrogate's court letters testamentary were granted Mary McCabe and Ella McCabe, executors of the estate of Nicholas McCabe of Kingston. Value of estate does not exceed $10,000. The beneficiaries are Mary and Ella McCabe, nees; John, Hugh and David McCabe, nees; each in $2,500. C. A. Murray, attorney for the petitioners.

Germany Will Be Put to Work

Under Policy of Von Hindenburg—Observance of Dawes Plan Expected—Revised Official Election Figures.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Hanover, Germany, April 28.—With military precision, the former field marshal and now President-Elect Paul Von Hindenburg let it be known today that his policy will be summed up in three graphic words: "Get to work."

This was the news after Chancellor Luther talked an hour this morning with the new president of the German Republic.

Chancellor Luther communicated to the 77-year-old chief executive the thanks of the nation and congratulations in his own behalf.

Vital points of German policy were discussed by the now two most important figures in European politics. In addition they talked over formalities of the coming inauguration. Since Hindenburg has a personal dislike for oaths, it was indicated there will be very little of the pomp and ceremony which usually go with such an occasion.

The Constitution provides that the chancellor and cabinet ministers shall place their portfolios at the disposal of the president. But the close conference between President-Elect Hindenburg and Chancellor Luther was taken by political observers to mean that Luther would continue to occupy that office. Immediate changes in other ministers also was said to be unlikely.

With Luther remaining in office the policy to which Germany has adhered for the last year would continue, for a strict observance of the Dawes plan has been a feature of his administration.

Cannot Return to Monarchy.

Berlin, April 28.—Germany began gradually today to turn its thought and attention back to the traditional church, home and kitchen but with the question firmly implanted in its mind.

"Where are we now that General Von Hindenburg has been elected president?"

The only definite answer Germany could find to this perplexing question was that as president "the old man of the Mazurian Lakes" was going to put the nation to work. And this opinion, freely voiced in the street, appeared to meet with popular approval.

The first reaction, after it was apparent that Hindenburg was elected, came from that half of Germany which did not vote for him. That half wondered what the other half could be thinking about in putting into office a man assumed to be strongly monarchistic and a devoted servant of the former kaiser.

Brief utterances which have come from Hindenburg since Sunday have indicated he has, if any, only a remote thought that the nation ever can return to a monarchy.

The revised official figures showed the following: Hindenburg, 14,648,775. Marx, 13,760,088. Thaelmann, 1,931,635. Others 21,896.

These figures give Hindenburg a plurality of 888,681. Marx's strength in Berlin was brought out in the analysis, he having received in the city a plurality of 269,858.

What the politicians have to say about Hindenburg's victory was expected to be heard when the Reichstag begins its session today.

EMPLOYER PAYS $25 FINE FOR MCBEE

Melvin McBee, colored, formerly of this city, who is employed on a chicken farm near Newburgh, visited East Kingston, Saturday last, got drunk and was arrested for disorderly conduct. Judge Webber before whom he was arraigned fined Melvin $25. Being unable to pay the fine the defendant was brought to the Ulster county jail to serve twenty-five days. Monday night McBee's troubles sent a telegram money order for $25 to Sheriff Wells and McBee was released and departed for East Kingston about midnight, with a promise to return to his job on the chicken farm today.

IRISH SOCIALISTS FOR ELECTION OF HINDENBURG

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Berlin, April 28.—The communists in an open letter today suggested a "twenty-four hour general strike" by the "union of the entire proletariat on the occasion of Hindenburg's entry into Berlin."

An open letter in the newspaper "Rote Labor," and addressed to the Socialists, charged them with "treason." It was taken by political observers as a more bold step to throw blame for the election defeat on the Socialists.

Gypsy Chiefs to Hold Conclave

Gypsies of United States Split Over Right of Chief Butch to Sell Princess—Police Will Keep Eye on Situation.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Salem, Mass., April 28.—Fifteen year old Annie Butch, pretty gypsy princess, twice within a year sold in marriage by her father, today was the storm center of a controversy that has split the gypsies of the country.

There are tribesmen who declare the father of the charming little princess is within his rights in selling his daughter as per gypsy custom.

On the other side are tribesmen who are bitter in their opposition to the course taken by the elder Butch. As a result of the controversy, a council of gypsy chiefs of the United States has been called to meet at the farm here, where Chief Butch makes his headquarters. Salem and Lynn police today were keeping an eye on the situation.

A year ago, Chief Butch sold the princess for $2,500 to Crown Prince John Stokes, of the Stokes gypsy tribe of Pelham, N. Y. She would remain with her husband and a council of war of the gypsy tribes upheld her action. Now, according to police, the princess has been sold for $3,000 to Joe Miller, a local tribesman.

The fate of the princess will be decided at the conclave. The majority of the tribes, it is stated, will then move on to Indian Orchard and from there will journey to Chicago.

Victory Claimed By Both Sides

Result of Greatest Mimic War in History Causing Many Arguments—Official Settlement of Arguments to be Given in Several Days.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Honolulu, April 28.—America's army and navy forces prepared today to learn the lesson by the greatest mimic war in history.

The umpires of the gigantic manoeuvres off Hawaii who saw the "blue," or attacking forces literally attempt to wipe out the "black" or defending forces, were discussing the mimic naval attack, preparatory to calling of the grand critique at which official findings will be announced.

High navy officials said the critique would probably not be called for several days, giving the officers of the United States fleet an opportunity to discuss the manoeuvres from all angles.

Outstanding today in the discussion of the great war was the importance of control of the air.

On both sides many airplanes were shot down and destroyers were "lost" by both the "blues" and "blacks" in an effort to determine if successful aerial attack may be carried on from aircraft carriers.

Both sides were busy claiming victory, the "blues" asserting that the island defenses had proved inadequate and that only gunfire from destroyers could properly defend Hawaii while the "blacks" were claiming their aerial attack had blown the main attacking fleet of the "blue" forces out of the sea.

Defense airplanes were responsible for the showing of "black" forces in the mimic fighting.

From the clouds the "blacks" airplanes showered disaster as the "enemy" attempted to land 2,000 marine under Major General Wendell C. Neville. Assisted by the fire of shore guns which fired salvo after salvo, the bombing planes of the defense poured a rain of trouble upon the invaders.

Admiral Countz, Major General Hines and a staff of experts acting as umpires will sit aboard the U. S. S. Seattle on the grand critique which will officially settle all arguments now raging among the officers and men of the American armada.

SIXTEEN ARE ADMITTED TO CITIZENSHIP HERE.

Laborers Wanted to Die.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, April 28.—A Tokio dispatch today to the London Daily Mail said that fifty Korean laborers, who believed themselves condemned by track contractors, walked out on the main line, laid down on the tracks and calmly awaited death by decapitation. It was their idea of revenge against their employers. They were not run over, however. They were arrested.

A Chimney Fire.

An alarm rung in from Box 55, corner Washington avenue and North Front street, at 9:10 o'clock, this morning, called out the fire department. The fire was in a chimney in a frame dwelling at 2 Cornhill street, owned by H. Jernvall. The fire was soon extinguished with slight damage done.

New Methods for Dry Enforcement

"Hard Boiled" Methods Not to Be Used in Re-organization of Federal Prohibition Forces—Commissioner Haynes Will Not Lose Job.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, April 28.—"Hard boiled" methods will have no part in the re-organization of the federal prohibition forces, General L. C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury declared today.

More effective enforcement of the liquor laws must be brought about by scientific developments of initiative, self respect and intelligent exercise of judgment on the part of the prohibition unit, rather than by "big stick" tactics, according to Andrews.

The new assistant secretary, who was given the task of re-organizing methods of prohibition enforcement by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, said he had made considerable progress in his survey of the situation and will shortly submit recommendations to Mellon.

Prohibition Commissioner R. A. Haynes will not be ousted, it was announced at the treasury. It had been charged that Haynes would not "work with" treasury officials.

Reports that Andrews intended to use "hard boiled" methods to revolutionize law enforcement resulted from the fact that he formerly headed a military police system of the American Expeditionary Forces.

SELECT JURY TO TRY OLYMPIA MACRI

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New Haven, Conn., April 28.—The task of selecting six additional talesmen to complete the jury which will try Olympia Macri, 18 year old singer, for the murder of John "Sheik" Bagnano, alleged father of her baby, was continued today in superior court. Taking of testimony is not expected to begin before next Thursday.

Olympia appeared in court pale and haggard from an illness suffered over the week end. She wore a black and green costume which she had fashioned while in prison.

Before entering the court room Olympia was permitted to see her baby Lucy, whose father was the married Bagnano. Lucy is not allowed to be brought into the trial under a judicial ruling. The accused killed and embraced her baby for ten minutes until the sheriff informed her that court was ready to convene.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Boston, April 28.—Suit for $1,000,000, charging breach of contract, brought by the Beacon Oil Company of Everett against the International Paper Company of New York, went on trial in federal court today.

The plaintiff claimed the paper company agreed to take the oil for use in the Kumford and Livermore Falls, Maine mills but only used a small part of the order. The paper company admitted the contract, but declared that strikes and other unforeseen developments made it impossible to buy all the oil ordered.

FLATBUSH.

Flatbush, April 25.—A stereopticon lecture of the work of the Reformed Church among the natives of the Kentucky mountains, will be given by Mrs. Ralston, one of the secretaries of the Board of Domestic Missions, on Friday evening, May 1st. No admission will be charged. A silver offering will be taken at the close of the lecture, which promises to be very interesting.

The chicken supper given by the Christian Endeavor Society last Wednesday was a success. A goodly number were present.

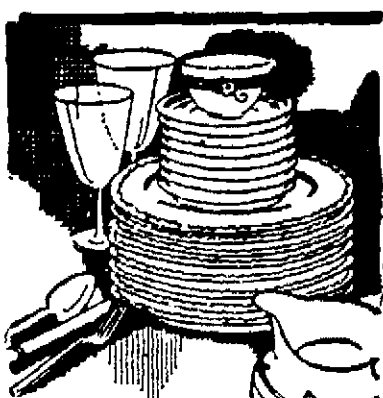

Miss Helen Pearson is ill. The Ulster Heat, Power and Light Company has the poles on the job for the extension line here and most of the holes are dug.

Mr. and Mrs. Long and family of Zena spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Pearson.

Miss Rachel Osterhoudt's friends were glad to see her at church services Sunday morning, after a few weeks of illness.

The Rev. J. B. Steketee, a former pastor, preached here Sunday morning.

They sparkle-washed the Rinso way!

HOW sparkling and bright this wonderful new kind of soap leaves the dishes, silver and glassware!

Shake a little Rinso right from the package into your hot dish water. It dissolves quickly making rich soapy suds that get the grease off in a jiffy. There are no specks of soap to stick to china or glassware. Use Rinso for kitchen dishes too.

THE DRESS BENEATH IS A GAY SURPRISE.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

Although it is the mannish mode which impresses one most in reviewing spring fashions, this is augmented by softer types. At Longchamp and Auteuil, where the smart world has congregated for racing, there have been women who are sartorially important, and who have denied themselves the feminine privilege of donning masculine attire.

Here, as well as abroad, the mannish double breasted coat has scored, but so, too, have the more softly feminine types, several of which have front fullness.

In Answer to the Query: "When is a Straight Gown Not Straight?"

While coats have a persistent way of being tailored, dresses are often quite the reverse. There is no smarter fashion just now than revealing a ray of red, or a bright-colored crepe dress under a dark coat.

Rumor has it that for fall—so very far off—coats are going to be a la Russe. Russian costumes have provided so much interest in the past for designers, that it is small wonder they are loath to give them up. Navy, particularly when sliced with red, is in itself rather Slavic.

Fall horrors from summer is making use of velvet. The velvet sports coat, which has a successful record at Deauville and Palm Beach, promises to repeat its success hereabouts, so that it is significant when it appears in advance fall collections.

FASHION'S FAVORITE—

THE FLARE

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

The complete and general acceptance of the flare is one of the most revolutionary messages issued by the mandate of fashion. It has almost come to pass that the gown sans flare is the exception, and comes more or less under suspicion of not being the latest word.

Some French and American creators insist that the flare is a flash in the pan, and that the straight line will outlive any flurry or interest in wider hemlines. Be that as it may, no one makes any mistake in ordering a frock with a flare, and in adding a few inches to the width of one's tailleur, which is fair enough, considering how many have been chopped off the length of it.

Much fashion interest centers about the cape, an effort having been put forth to popularize it for street wear. In order to make its comeback more sure, fashion editors who are in a mood for capes, have added a flare and have fitted the cape snugly about the shoulders, for even the most expertly tailored dress must be especially about the neck and shoulders.

One so often feels that a far more piece is a spring necessity, that it is a distinct change to see women who have omitted any sort of neck trimmings and subscribe to a married line.

Telephone Co. Grows Rapidly

New York Telephone Company To Divide Territory Into Three Areas To Meet Demands of Fast Growing Business.

A change in the operating organization of the New York Telephone Company to care for the rapid growth in all parts of the territory served by the company becomes effective June 1st, according to J. S. McCulloch, president of the company. The territory served by the company in New York and in New Jersey is to be divided into three areas, upstate, downstate, and New Jersey, each under a general manager reporting to the president. At present there is one general manager with general department heads reporting to him.

The upstate territory, extending from Buffalo on the west, to the state line on the east, and south to Westchester will be under the direction of Burch Foraker as general manager. Present division headquarters at Albany and Buffalo will be continued but will report to Mr. Foraker, who will be located in Albany. Mr. Foraker is a graduate of Cornell University and has had long and wide experience in the telephone business. He will have entire responsibility in traffic, plant, commercial and engineering matters in his territory.

In the past fifteen years, the number of telephones served by the New York Telephone Company has more than tripled, the increase actually exceeding more than a million and a half instruments in service. During the next five or six years the company expects a growth of another million telephones and to care for such a great growth the reorganization just announced was decided upon to insure ability to maintain the present high standard of public service.

Ask Clemency For Diamonds

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, N. Y., April 28.—A petition signed by 15,000 persons was filed with Governor Smith this afternoon at the hearing on the application for executive clemency for Morris and Joseph Diamond and John Farini, three youths convicted of killing two Brooklyn bank messengers.

The three youths are scheduled to die in the electric chair Thursday night.

The executive chamber was almost filled with relatives and friends of the Diamond brothers. Their mother, three sisters, and uncle, were present.

Governor Smith listened for nearly two hours to the pleas for clemency. He gave no indication what he would do.

WILL COOLIDGE GREET NEW GERMAN PRESIDENT?

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, April 28.—The question of whether President Coolidge is going to send a cablegram of congratulations to Field Marshal Von Hindenburg upon his election to the presidency of Germany apparently remained undecided here today following the cabinet meeting.

None has thus far been dispatched, and efforts to ascertain whether one would be sent proved futile. President Coolidge informed callers at the White House today that he did not care to comment on the German election in any way.

Less Flapperism About New Coats

Mature Dignity Feature of Spring Wraps—Follow
Flaring Lines.

All of the new tendencies which budded hopefully last spring and then were checked by a killing frost, have been revived for the new spring coat, notes a fashion correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune. There is less flapperism and more mature dignity about the new models, the smarter types following the flaring lines of daytime dresses. The principal features of the new coats are tabulated below.

The chief change in the coat outline is the replacement of the sinuous lines of the wrap-around model with the looser silhouette of the new buttoned coats. Very few spring models are made to wrap over and it may be taken for granted that this uncomfortable style is passing. The straight lines of last year have been generally replaced by flared flounces and panels which concentrate the widening from the knees downward, always at the front.

The characteristic coat sleeve is plain and straight, although some widen perceptibly toward the wrist. The Chanel fashion of turning back the cuff with a linked button is a smart touch that is assured a vogue on these shores. The collar is an item that allows of much variety. Often it is plainly tailored and turned back with revers after the manner of a man's coat. But whether plain or fancy, this summer's revers are considerably wider than they have been for some time past. Many coats have a jabot revers formed by a semi-circular cut resembling the shaped flounce, which falls in graceful folds to the waistline. The scarf collar is another variation that is extremely popular. Sometimes the collar is continued on both sides to form a scarf that may be knotted in a loose bow in front, or the ends may be passed round the throat, and left to hang down the back. Another style is the long stole that continues on one side of the collar only. This is usually twisted round the throat and hangs down one side of the front. The end may be embroidered with monogram or motif.

Quilted taffeta and black satin are frequently used for formal afternoon coats. Kasha, reps, taffeta, popeline, ottoman, satin, etamine, marocain de laine, crepe and georgette are other prominent coat fabrics. Flat fur trimmings are very popular. The favorites among these are summer ermine, straightened lamb, deerskin, gazelle and leopard. Lizard skin is also used in pastel tones that match the cloth of which the coat is made. Embroidery is less used than in former seasons, and when it is employed it is usually carried out in wool.

Choose a flared hemline if you want your new coat to bear the hallmark of spring 1925. And steer your course away from the flappy wrap-around—its vogue is passing.

Chic Afternoon Dress Is in Black and White

Always appropriate and stylish is the afternoon dress of black and white. The model is of black satin, relieved by white collar and jabot, all very simple.

Pictureque Names for Latest Silk Patterns

Colors as they are reflected in the late silk patterns are entertaining, and their line names sound rather like some sort of art game. In the browns, so fashionable this season, there are pecc, cocoa, cobra, penny, autumn and seal brown. Elephant, reindeer, wood smoke and sunrise describe the grays and tans. Blue is described as gobelin, honey bird, brassy, blue, periwinkle and blue house. Bistre, beige, banana, banana and rosewood indicate a palette of the neutrals, and all of the subtle colors are tempered to many lovely shades with picturesque names.

I divine what the world's going to be. I can't be bothered about how soon or late it's coming to a end. What gives me, as I take up all my time, is how to get through it and keep my mental life as bright as a Christmas tree.

William B. Scott Led Active Life

Death of William B. Scott on Tuesday Removed One of Kingston's Oldest and Most Respected Citizens—Before Retirement Was Very Active in Business and Politics.

In the death of William B. Scott on Sunday this city has lost one of its oldest and most representative citizens. Mr. Scott was born in Ehringen, Germany in 1839, and came to this city with his parents in 1848. He was for many years active in the business and social life of the city. In his youth he was greatly interested in music and was one of the most active members of the famous Rondout Band, of which the late Prof. George Goodier, was director and leader. This band will be pleasantly remembered by many of the older residents of Kingston.

Mr. Scott in later years formed a partnership with George Webber and under the firm name of Scott & Webber they conducted Washington Hall on Abert street, which, in those days, was one of the best known institutions of entertainment in the Hudson river valley. This hall was destroyed by fire some years ago and the site was taken over by the Fort plant. In those early days of the hall many of the greatest lectures in the country spoke from the stage of Washington Hall.

by the older residents was the annual visit of the San Francisco Minstrels, considered one of the greatest minstrel troupes that ever toured the country.

Mr. Scott was long active in politics, having served as a member of the town board, member of the common council and board of supervisors. For nine years he held the position of superintendent of the City Home, and subsequently was secretary of the board of health and registrar of vital statistics for the same number of years.

In his youth Mr. Scott was also greatly interested in fireman matters and served as a volunteer fireman for many years, and later became a member of the Exempt Firemen's Association, of which organization he held the position of treasurer at the time of his death.

Fraternally, Mr. Scott was a Mason and was on the honor roll of Rondout Lodge, No. 242, F. & A. M., as a fifty year member, having been raised a Master Mason in that lodge in 1866.

Mr. Scott was 87 years old and had been ill but a short time. During his long and useful life he saw many changes in the city and was a man whose genial personality endeared him to all who knew him. He is survived by his wife, one son, Irving W. Scott of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. Walter M. Baldwin of Lewis, N. J.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen.—April 28.—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McCann and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Ross of Albany spent Sunday with their brother, Dr. George W. Ross on Broadway.

The degree team of Hope Temple, No. 86, Pathian Sisters, will meet Wednesday evening, April 29, for rehearsal. The meeting is called for 7:30 o'clock.

People of this village who own dogs would do a kindness to garden plants if they keep them tied up so the dogs could not dig around in the ground. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Everyone interested in the Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Church will attend the cafeteria supper in the chapel this evening. Supper served at 5:20 until all are served. The applying menu was in The Freeman Monday evening and ought to entice every one that enjoys a good substantial meal at a nominal price.

Mrs. Mary Gill is seriously ill at her home on Hudson street.

Jews Attacked in Bucharest

Jewish shopkeepers in Bucharest gathered to protest at the Council of Ministers against recent anti-Semitic riots in the Roumanian capital. They were attacked by college students, who previously had burned and partly wrecked a synagogue. Many Jewish merchants have had their losses cancelled by owners as a protection to the properties.

WDS-SISTER, 102, NOW SEEKS BROTHER, 103

...Aged 98, Has Been Seeking Relatives for 50 Years.

New York.—Thomas Allen's quest of a century is not yet ended, but he is approaching a successful conclusion. He has found his long-lost sister, Elizabeth, after 50 years of separation. He hopes soon to find his brother, James. If James is living, he is one hundred three years old. Elizabeth is one hundred two and James is ninety-eight.

A Scottish soldier of fortune, who crossed the seas without winning fortune, Thomas Allen knew he must sometime effect a reconciliation with his family. It's a small world, and the way time mows down people—other people—it's a still smaller world. The Allens are a long-lived family, and that's how he found Elizabeth.

"My hunt became easier every year," Thomas explained recently. "At first, when I traveled here and there and looked for Elizabeth Allen or James Allen I was always on the wrong track. But when I got to asking about Elizabeth Allen, a hundred years ago you know, it was very different. Tell me Friendly Cop.

"Two days ago I was in Montreal, and got friendly with a 'cop.' I told him as I've always told every one that tells my fancy, what my one aim in life was. It was to find Elizabeth and James. I asked him, not hopeful of any success, whether he knew an Elizabeth Allen who would be one hundred two years old, if she were living."

"Well," says this 'cop,' "I don't know any Elizabeth Allen who is one hundred two, but you ought to remember that she probably got married sometime, and isn't using the Allen part at all."

"Right," says I. "Do you know any Elizabeth who might be one hundred two years old?"

"That I do," says he. "There's an Elizabeth McMurray lives somewhere around New York. In a town called Sparkill, three miles or so south of New York. Why don't you try her?"

Thomas did. He caught the next train for New York, took the first train after that for Nyack, and then traveled on to Sparkill.

Sturdy and Alert.

After years and hearty notwithstanding, he walked from the station to the home of Mrs. William Schuch, whose mother, Mrs. Elizabeth McMurray, lives with her, so the neighbors said. Time does indeed change people, Thomas found, but there was something about the Allen that Mrs. McMurray still possessed. There could be no doubt about it.

"That's you, Elizabeth, isn't it?" said Thomas.

Mrs. McMurray peered through her fingers at the figure of the old, old man with a vigorous Allen voice. It was Thomas. No mistake about that. "Yes, Tom. . . . I was beginning to think you weren't going to come any more."

Thomas now plans to start looking for his brother. Rumor had it that he was last known to be in Philadelphia. Possibly he died there.

Thomas entered the British army 15 years ago. He saw service in every part of the globe. Every five years he came home to his people. The last time he came home they were gone to America. The quest began in 1875. Mrs. McMurray, being a widow, was supported in comfortable circumstances by her daughter and son-in-law, who is superintendent of the Rockland county cemetery.

Accidentally Kills

Self Shining Rabbit

Rome.—Dangerous to help his sister in preparing dinner caused the death of a young mechanic of this city recently. He took a sharp knife and began to cut a piece of a rabbit which was hanging on a nail in the wall. He cut with such strength that the knife, deviating from its direction, penetrated his hand.

A wooden pillow arrangement was used by Jones to keep his head afloat. He told the police that he had spent his nights for months in the pool because it afforded relief from the cold weather.

MAN COMES HOME AFTER BODY WAS BURIED AS HIS

Corpus Claimed as Father and Husband Proves
That of Woman.

New Orleans.—The family of Frank Muller, Sr., reported to the police recently that they were mourning his death after having buried what they thought was his body, when he walked into his home, and hardly had that mystery been settled when the coroner announced that a body recovered from the Mississippi river and identified by one man as his father and by a wife as her husband was really that of a woman.

Frank Muller, Sr., a man of fifty-six years, had been separated from his wife for some five years, and when the body of a man about his age and bearing papers with the name "Frank Muller" was discovered in a gas-filled room, Muller's son and wife identified it and gave it burial.

Read of His Funeral.

Muller read of the funeral in the newspapers and went home to tell the family he was still alive. The mystery of "Frank Muller's" identity remains unsolved, except that the rooming-house keeper said she heard him say he was from California.

The other body, which apparently had been in the water for months, was found floating in the river here, and Charles W. Burdette, Jr., whose father, according to police records, jumped into the river here Mar. 27, 1924, identified it by a belt buckle and false teeth.

Body That of Woman.

Mrs. John Fisher visited the morgue later in the day and said it was the body of her husband, who disappeared January 25 last.

Then Dr. E. J. de Bergeau, assistant coroner and a physician for an insurance company, decided to investigate and discovered the remains were those of a woman. Police have no record of any woman disappearing here.

Cult Priestess Jailed

for Burning Sacrifice

Kitchener, Ont.—Anna Reynolds, reputed priestess of a cult known as "the faith of the holy light," was taken into custody charged with having presided over a weird midnight ceremony at Bluevale, Ont., in which ten hogs were sacrificed as "an offering to devilish spirits."

Constable P. C. Whiteside arrested her on the charge that she was "lunatic and dangerous to be at large." Earl Underwood, who furnished the hogs and who told authorities he "would do anything Anna Reynolds said to do," was held for questioning.

The woman, a professional nurse, came from Toronto to the Underwood farm to attend Mrs. Underwood during an illness. Underwood's story is that she ordered him to build a great pyre of logs. Then she ordered that ten of the farmer's choicest hogs be trussed upon the pyre. At midnight the priestess ignited the pyre and as the blaze mounted she made queer gestures and uttered strange incantations.

Napping Caddy's Head

Used as Golf Tee

Pensacola, Fla.—Use of his head as a tee sent Johnnie Gaton, fifteen-year-old negro caddy at the Pensacola Country club, to the hospital with a fractured skull.

Play was dull on the course and Johnnie was taking a nap. A fellow caddy, lugging golf sticks, placed a ball on his head and after taking a couple of healthy swings, drove. He missed the ball.

Doctors despaired of saving Johnnie's life.

Ponckhockie to Have Junk Yard

Barney Millens, Meadow Street Junk Dealer, Says Old Turck Mill on Strand for Junk Yard—Sale Includes Two Dwelling Houses.

Barney Millens, the Meadow street junk dealer, has purchased from William J. Turck the old Turck mill property on the Strand and will use it for a junk yard. The deal includes the two frame dwelling houses in addition to the mill. The property has no dock frontage, but there is an Ulster & Delaware railroad switch that runs into the property.

The property sold lies between the old trolley road power house and the Standard Oil Company plant, but does not extend to the creek front. The mill has not been used in years. It was originally operated many years ago by the grandfather of Postmaster Walter P. Crane and was later bought by the William Turck Lumber Company.

MISUSE OF IODIZED

SALT MAY DO HARM.

Iodized salt, which has been recommended as a preventive of goiter in children and is being extensively used, especially in Michigan, may do serious harm when used by persons having goiter already developed, according to a statement just issued by Dr. Matthias Nicoll, Jr., state commissioner of health. "Persons suffering from goiter," Dr. Nicoll points out, "should be cautioned against taking iodine in any form except upon the advice of their physicians." This warning is based upon information contained in a personal letter from Dr. O. P. Kimball of Cleveland, one of the recognized authorities on the prevention of goiter, to Dr. Joseph C. Palmer, health director in the public schools at Syracuse, N. Y.

Experience in Cleveland indicates that while salt containing a small amount of iodine is effective in the prevention of goiter, if it is used by persons already afflicted a compensatory simple condition may be converted into a serious one. It has also been found that a number of adults especially susceptible to the effects of iodine have developed a temporary "iodine rash" after using this salt. The Michigan state department of health has begun an investigation of the results of use of the salt. Dr. Kimball advised that the administration of minute quantities of iodine in tablet form to children needing it be continued in the Syracuse schools.

Inness Painting To Be Exhibited

Great Work of Famous Artist of Cragsmoor to be Shown in Principal Cities—Picture That Impressed President Coolidge.

The "Only Hope," George Inness, Jr.'s impressive and spiritual painting that was exhibited to President Calvin Coolidge at the Corcoran Art Gallery in Washington, evidently made a very deep impression upon the chief executive, says the Tarpon Springs Leader. The letter following was received from the President, in which he states that it is a gratification that this painting is to be exhibited in the principal cities of America that a correct impression of the destruction of war be learned.

This letter comes from the White House:

"The opportunity to see 'The Only Hope,' painted by George Inness, Jr., is an experience which I shall always appreciate. This great canvas has a peculiarly spiritual appeal. The first impression is that of desolation, of civilization in ruins. Hatred and conflict have reached their logical conclusion. But as we look again we see a small but distinct figure of the Bird of Peace, and over it gleaming the promise of the sun struck with a suggestion of the Redemption. It is the representation of wrath overcome by love.

"It is a gratification to know that this painting is to be exhibited in the principal cities of America. I sincerely trust that it may go to the schools and universities, so that the youth of our country may receive a correct impression of the destruction of war and learn that the only hope of the world lies in peace through righteousness.

"Very cordially yours,

(Signed) "CALVIN COOLIDGE."

Senator Fletcher Writes.

Following the exhibition, United States Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, who will be present at the dedication of the site for the Inness Memorial here on May 2nd, wrote the following letter to Mr. Inness, Jr.:

"My dear Mr. Inness:

"Allow me to express my indebtedness to you for the privilege of seeing yesterday afternoon your glorious picture, 'The Only Hope.' 'Art is said to be intended primarily to affect the emotions. The creative faculty must be called into play. It may be the glorification of the commonplace, like Millet's 'Angulus.' It involves subject, drawing, color and other things. Here you have an inspiring subject, most skilful treatment, beautiful colors, and the picture appeals to the aesthetic and spiritual emotions through the reason. One is loath to leave it and the more one studies it the greater is the intellectual satisfaction and the more it touches the deepest emotions, appeals to the highest thought, delights the aesthetic sensibilities, and stirs the spiritual depths. It carries most impressively the great message that the spiritual is the real.

"It seems to speak out that War is an effect, not a cause, and the causes lie for back in the disposition and the desires of human nature. We must begin there.

"I think it says, too, that Peace is an effect, not a cause, and it is the effect of righteousness.

"It carries a high and holy message, not in words, but in the inspired conception of the artist beautifully set before the eyes and profoundly impressed upon the mind.

"Peace comes, not by the sword, we see what dominion founded upon force and power comes to, but through the supremacy of righteousness and spiritual brotherhood.

"As the vision unfolds we get a new light on the meaning of Luke's 'Glory to God in the Highest; and on Earth peace to men of good will.'

"I wish it were possible to distribute this picture like the rays of the sun.

"Cordially yours,

"DUNCAN U. FLETCHER."

Frederick Williamson, describing the picture, writes:

The claims of Tarpon Springs for distinction have sufficient potency in the fact that for forty years the place has been the winter home of the two great Innesses. The elder George Inness, whose centenary is celebrated this year, is acknowledged as the greatest landscape artist America has ever produced and one of all time. His son, George Inness, Jr., admittedly handicapped by the fact that he bears the same name as his father, will without doubt be given high place in the niche of immortality. It is conceivable, of course, that the critical world will observe the traditions and withhold the laurel from the brow of the present George Inness as it did from his illustrious father until he had fulfilled his years and passed beyond any thought of care for the honor.

Be that as it may, both George Inness, Jr., and his world-famous father have left their impress on Tarpon Springs and, through that city, on the whole state of Florida. It was at Tarpon Springs that the elder Inness did much of his best known work, painting pictures that today occupy positions in great public or private collections and which are valued at figures that represent substantial fortunes.

It is at Tarpon Springs that the most noteworthy works of the present Inness have been given to the world. Future generations will without doubt turn their varied steps in the direction of the city on the Anclote to do honor to the great artist who conceived a new mode to express the rich beauty of some of the noblest spiritual themes. His magnificent triptych, based on the words of the Twenty-third Psalm, painted two years ago, and now hanging in a little church at Tarpon Springs, has already focused the attention of the entire world on this little Florida city. In like manner the painting of the musical picture, 'The Only Hope,'—spiritually powerful in its subject and imagery—has given the world a new mode to express the rich beauty of some of the noblest spiritual themes.

New Movement Seen.

In fact, it will not be surprising if out of the artist's achievements of George Inness, Jr., a new and broad religious impulse, having for its motive a spiritual uplift in which love and tolerance are the active principles, would have a world-wide sweep. After visiting Tarpon Springs which in many respects has become a shrine for Inness devotees, one can readily detect signs that point to such a movement already beginning. That it will gather momentum through the sending North of the painting, 'The Only Hope,' sponsored by a group of the nation's business men, who are interested in the permanent establishment of world-wide peace, is easily conceivable.

Of course, all of this is apart from the great work that George Inness, Jr., has already accomplished in his creations as a landscape artist. In this work he has become more profound and inspirational as the years have grown upon him. Today, after having passed the traditional three score years and ten, his greatness as the interpreter of nature in her various moods, is more apparent than at any time in his career. The Inness paintings are entirely purposeful. He adheres to no school but his own, and he is not ashamed to acknowledge that his art is devoted to arousing the emotions and to stimulating a spiritual exaltation among those who sense the beauty and the glory of "woods and sky and growing things."

George Inness, Jr., has no patience with the dogma, "art for art's sake." He holds to the principle that art is for the sake of the individual, and that it has a vital significance in developing the minds and the hearts and ennobling the lives of humanity. Only a mighty personality—a man moulded and shaped to perform a great service on behalf of his fellows—may with impunity flout the accepted conventions that have prevailed for generations. And it is because he is so great George Inness and his art are unique among the forces in America today and gracious a man that the present which eventually will give to the world a new consciousness of the privileges of life and living, and will in a most significant sense leave the world a great deal better for his having lived in it.

From out of the depths of his love and understanding of the truth and beauty in nature, George Inness, Jr., has given to the world a new and loftier sense of the sublime handiwork of God. He has taught his fellowmen the music and the poetry of the woods and the sky, the glory of the sunshine filtering through a forest glade, the rhyme and the reason in running brooks and still waters, the majesty and the power of the elements in their varying moods.

In these things he has bestowed upon the world an inheritance priceless in its inspiration and rich beyond comparison as a stimulation to the joy of just living.

A few weeks ago a little group of distinguished-looking people clustered about a remarkable painting hanging in the beautiful salon of Southern College at Lakeland. Among them stood a tall, quiet man, whose thoughtful look, expressive speech—his whole manner—betokened the man of letters, the intellectual.

The presence of that little group in front of that painting may have been more or less the casual fulfillment of a social obligation, in its outcome it was portentous. The quiet, thoughtful-looking man made it so. He remained for hours studying the pictures on the walls.

Almost dramatic in its import was the occasion. An idealist was confronting a vivid transcription of his own ideal, portrayed through the mastery of a great artist.

The thoughtful-looking man was Edward W. Bok, who gave the world food for much reflection when he offered a prize of $100,000 for a workable plan for world peace. The painting he was studying was George Inness, Jr.'s mystical achievement, 'The Only Hope,' which unlike anything of the kind that has ever been wrought, is in itself a powerful sermon on peace.

The painting depicts a scene of destruction—typical of world-wide desolation, such as those which became familiar in France and Belgium less than a decade ago. Grim, pervasive, awesome, the artist's conception of the culmination of hatred, strife, selfishness, confusion that persist in the world today might be horrifying were it not that above the horizon, in the distance the sun of a new day has risen. The skies are suffused with gorgeous, palpitating glory. The stones of the ruined city catch glints of the marvelous sunshine, transforming the scene into one of exquisite beauty.

Upon the earth every vestige of life has disappeared—mute evidence of the ruthlessness that is the offspring of hate. From the heavens comes the promise of new life, power, vitality. The Sun of Righteousness—the Christ—appears as 'The Only Hope.'

Small wonder that the painting made a profound impression on the intellectual mind of Mr. Bok and the group who clustered with him about the picture. Small wonder, too, that the great advocate of peace leaped to the thought that he might acquire the masterpiece for his own.

But the picture was not for sale—no money could buy it—because the artist had intended the painting shall be his message to the world on the subject of permanent peace.

To Sponsor Exhibition.

Just what part Edward Bok may have in aiding the accomplishment of this great purpose the world is yet to know. Certain it is, that his interest in the Inness masterpiece has been such an absorbing nature that after the picture was taken from Southern College at Lakeland, Mr. Bok made a special journey to meet the painter in his Florida studio and to see again his remarkable picture.

That was another historic meeting. Out of it grew a plan for the creation of a committee of nationally famous men who will sponsor the exhibition of 'The Only Hope' in the colleges of the United States, where it will also be available to the view of the public. Irving T. Bush, powerful New York man of commerce, head of the Bush Terminal Company, is the chairman of the committee. Mr. Bush was one of the little group who gathered in front of the painting the day Mr. Bok first saw it at Southern College. He also accompanied Mr. Bok to Tarpon Springs when the plans for the national exhibition were discussed.

It is eminently fitting that the impetus toward world peace, which may well be inspired by the Inness masterpiece, should find its inception in the halls of learning throughout the country.

Eventually, if the great painting does not find a final resting place in Washington, it will come back to Tarpon Springs, where the idea was first conceived, and it will become what it should be, a memorial to the illustrious painter, George Inness, Jr.

COMPANY OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRES

Judging from the reception Jimmie Connors and his Radio Band received again Monday, the public is delighted to have them remain at Keeney's another week. The photoplay, 'The Swan,' starring Adolphe Menjou, Ricardo Cortez and Frances Howard, is a beautiful comedy with a stirring human appeal. The performances are given as usual, 1, 3, 7 and 9, on daylight saving time.

Vaudeville lovers have a treat at the Kingston Opera House where the feature number Sally Sax-phones made a big hit Monday with her lively saxophone numbers interspersed with song and dance that made a decidedly different kind of variety offering. The photoplay is a modern society romance, 'Who Cares,' starring Beverly Bayne.

At the Auditorium tonight, 'The Silent Watcher,' is the feature picture offering. Glen Hunter, Bessie Love and Hobart Bosworth play the leading roles.

'Spice of Life,' which was presented at the Orpheum yesterday by Al Lemon and his record breaking musical show, pleased and will be presented again today. Tomorrow

A SNAIL IN TRAFFIC.

"Always be careful, watch your signals, know your signals and instead of assuming that the other fellow will do the right thing, assume that he will do the wrong one," this is the advice of Tommy Milton, one of the foremost automobile racing pilots in the world and who has traveled faster in a motor car than any other man, an achievement which he placed to his credit when he broke the world's mile record, traveling at the rate of 158 miles per hour.

"In driving in congested traffic," continues Tommy Milton, writing in the May issue of Your Car, the new automobile owners' magazine, which is now on the stands, "I always keep my foot ready for the brake pedal and my eyes are ever watchful for the extended arm of the driver of the car ahead."

"I never could understand why road speeds of fifty or sixty miles per hour are necessary. Perhaps it is that in many cases drivers just want to see how fast they can drive, imagining that it is something of a feat. Nothing of the sort. If a car can travel sixty miles an hour, anyone can make the car do that simply by stepping on the accelerator pedal. It's the car that produces the speed. And any driver who thinks he has perfect control at sixty miles an hour on an ordinary road, had better think again. Hold down your speed and save your life and your car. Yes, your car, because speed is just as damaging to mechanism as it is to the human body."

Reforestation Found Profitable

Idle Lands Are Being Used to Grow Profitable Crops of Wood—Superintendent of State Forests Tells of Work Being Done.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, April 23.—How farmers, landowners, cities and business concerns throughout the state are successfully reforesting thousands of acres and using idle land to grow profitable crops of wood was told by Clifford R. Pettis, superintendent of state forests of the Conservation Commission in a radio talk broadcast from W.H.A.Z. Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., as part of the educational work for American Forest Week.

"We are all trying to stop economic waste," said he. "Some of us are doing it better than others. It is a well known fact that there are only two producers of wealth, namely, soil and labor. No one has yet stated the relationship between acreage and day labor but if we assume that they are something like equal, and if we accept the general classification, that there are upwards of 4,000,000 acres of land in the state of New York, which is about 13 per cent of the Empire State, lying idle, we can appreciate that there is approximately the product of the labor of 4,000,000 people going to waste every year because this land is not made productive.

"This land, on account of its remoteness or poor quality of soil, is not fit for agriculture and its only use is for the production of trees.

"Reforestation is one of the state problems that is in the progress of solution. The planting of 4,000,000 acres of land is not an easy task. It is something that no agent can do alone. It is a problem which affects every county, town, school district and village in the state. In order to get these lands under production and have them produce the resources which they are supposed to do, means that every one must do their bit in getting this problem started. The program includes state forests, county forests, town forests, school district forests and private forests.

"The Conservation Commission is endeavoring to help out the land owners of the state in getting their land under forest production. It would take too long to give you all the details of the program but we can say that a group of interested men who have made a study of this question, decided that by 1935 the output of our forest nurseries should be 35,000,000 trees a year. On the other hand, the Conservation Commission, after thoroughly studying the situation, believes that the production of trees in the nurseries should be increased more rapidly and, therefore, they are this year sowing 2,646 pounds of seed, which will be available for delivery during the spring of 1927.

"We have been talking for about 75 years in regard to reforestation. During the past 25 years, we have planted about one hundred million trees and during the next two or three years, we are going to do as much in the way of reforestation as has been done during the past 25 years. Every one of the plantations we have made is a demonstration and induces other people to plant trees and, therefore, there is a possibility in sight of accomplishing the intended result, of getting the vast area of non-agricultural land of the state under forest production."

CHARGED WITH ABDUCTING
TWO HIGHLAND GIRLS

A charge of abducting two Highland girls six weeks ago faces Paul Ruggiero, 23, barber of 186 Union street, Poughkeepsie, who was committed to the Dutchess county jail Saturday night after his arrest at Staatsburgh. State troopers who had been trailing Ruggiero apprehended him for driving without a license and for carrying a revolver without a license. When Ruggiero was committed here on the charge of carrying a revolver without a license, the troopers also filed a warrant from Highland which charges abduction.

Ruggiero denied the abduction charge. He admitted having served three months back in 1917 for highway robbery. He was committed from Schoenck and served time in Dannemora and Comstock.

Objection to "Close Embrace"

Postal Authorities Hold Up Harvard Advocate Because of Picture Entitled "Neo-Platonic Love"—Lampoon Reappears on Newsstands.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cambridge, Mass., April 23.—Postal authorities at Washington today were expected to decide whether the Harvard Advocate comes under the ban of objectionable pictures and literature.

Local post-office officials have held up copies of the magazine pending a decision from Washington.

A drawing, entitled "Neo-Platonic Love" which represents a man and a woman in close embrace, is said to be the objectionable feature of the student publication.

At the same time the Harvard Lampoon, which also came under the censure of Washington and local police censors reappeared on newsstands. The American flag on the cover, depicting Washington crossing the Delaware, was changed to black. The nude caricature of Manet's Olympia was modified.

Despite these changes the Lampoon editors said they were determined to fight the suppression edict. They are backed by two Harvard law school professors.

In the Lampoon part of the reproduction of Manet's painting is blocked white and within this space is a caption: Furis Omnia Furis (to the pure all things are pure). Part of this picture is omitted in this edition in deference to the tastes and prejudices of sundry nasty-minded Torquemadas and Dogberies.

This is understood to refer to Tomas de Torquemada, organizer of the Spanish inquisition, and Dogberly, the abused constable in Shakespeare's plays.

Writers Urge Better Homes

Clean Government and Healthy Development of Economic and Social System Dependent on Them, Says Secretary Hoover—What Others Say.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., April 28.—

The entire May issue of "Child Welfare," the national magazine of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, which is issued today, is devoted to the subject of the Home in connection with the educational campaign of Better Homes in America. The programs for the meetings during May of the 12,000 local Parent-Teachers' Associations throughout the United States, which are shaped and guided by "Child Welfare," provide for detailed consideration of the problems of home life. Better Homes Week, the culmination of the annual Better Homes in America campaign, is set for the period of May 11 to 17 inclusive. Local Parent-Teachers' Associations will cooperate with the fifteen hundred local demonstrations of "better homes" in every state in the Union.

Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce and president of Better Homes in America, has contributed an article forcefully pointing out the great importance of home training for future good citizenship. According to Secretary Hoover, whether the next generation will "move toward clean government, healthy development of our economic and social system, and fair dealing and good will between nations" or whether it will drift "toward corruption in government, bitter class conflicts, and the international hatreds and jealousies that culminate in wars," depends largely on home training.

"The answer," Mr. Hoover writes, "will be determined largely by the attitude toward such problems which we impart to our children. To us who have witnessed the world war and its accompaniments, the question is not an academic one, and we cannot remain cold toward it. If good citizenship in the broadest sense of the term is to be the deciding factor, and I believe that it will be, we must make it as vital a matter as earning our daily bread."

"Good citizenship begins at home with the family circle, for the family is the most basic and important social unit."

Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and a member of the Advisory Council of Better Homes in America, has contributed to this number of "Child Welfare" an article on "The High School Practice House," a movement which is being encouraged strongly by the Better Homes organization.

Dr. Stanley reviews briefly the practice of house movement among the colleges, and the difficulties in the way of the development of the high school practice house as well as its importance in the instruction of girl students; showing how they may be overcome and the benefits to high school students of this sort of practical instruction.

Dr. John M. Gries, chief of the Division of Building and Housing, and his assistant, James S. Taylor, are joint authors of a valuable article on "Housing Standards," touching not only the adequacy of shelter from the elements, light, ventilation, water supply, and the like, but the direct connection between a well kept attractive house and a happy healthy family.

This article takes up seriously the physical structure of the house, the number and arrangement of rooms, the plumbing, light and heat and ventilation, the decoration of the interior of the house, the exterior and the surroundings, home ownership, the application of requirements to apartments. Concluding, the article says:

"Fortunately the majority of American houses meet reasonable standards of shelter from the elements, privacy, space, light, ventilation, and heating. There are still millions of them, however, which do not have plumbing or good artificial light, which are overcrowded, and which expose their occupants cruelly to extremes of cold or heat. The houses included for one or more reasons in the deficient group stand as a challenge, not only to the families living in them, but to the communities in which they are situated, and to the entire nation."

"In a still larger group of homes, health and character suffer to a certain extent, and home life fails to reach its finest fruition because the families in them do not make the best of what they have. 'Plain living and high thinking' is an excellent motto, but its author does not forget that maintaining a good standard of plain living is a task that calls for a coolly share of our best brains and energy."

Mrs. Grace Abbott, chief of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor, another member of the Board of Directors of Better Homes in America, has contributed an article on "Homes for Dependent Children."

"The Better Homes movement would gain little impetus if it had no relation to children and child welfare," Miss Abbott writes. "It is primarily because of the children that it has an important public aspect."

The article takes up at some length the problem of those children who are orphans, half-orphans, neglected and abandoned, who must be cared for in part or in whole by the public.

Mrs. Ella Lyman Cabot, author of "Everyday Ethics" has written for this number of "Child Welfare" an article dealing with "Spiritual Values in Which the Family Can Share."

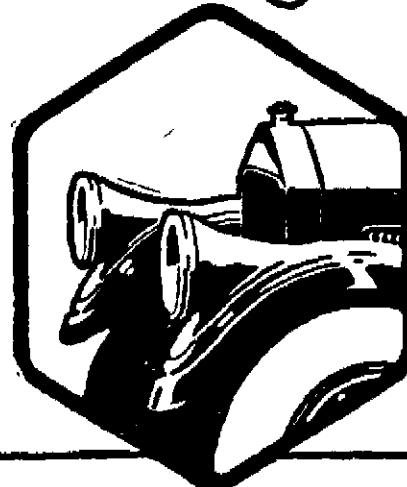

"What should every home express?" Mrs. Cabot asks. "First of all, homelike-ness and second, hospitality. A house is made homelike by very simple things that yet are spiritual values—first of all the love of children, and the love of God, then special love of flowers, of books, of pictures or music. Now to express

A brief article on the home playground has been contributed by Joseph Lee, president of the Playground and Recreation Association of America, stressing particularly the advantages of the backyard playground.

John Hilder, manager of the Civic Development Department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and a member of the Better Homes in America Advisory Council, has also written for this issue of "Child Welfare."

Mr. Hilder deals with the child who has reached the age where he starts to wander from the home playground, when the questions of neighborhood homes, schools, of public playgrounds, or street hazards, become matters of the first moment. Where conditions have been bad in the past, Mr. Hilder points out, efforts to correct them have been limited largely to moving to another neighborhood, and by private covenants in deeds of ownership.

"The one-time best residences of the older cities tell the story of their failures," Mr. Hilder points out. "It is not by running away or by private covenants that good neighborhoods may be secured, but by combating the conditions that make bad neighborhoods, that convert neighborhoods into bad."

The way in which the character of a neighborhood may be safeguarded is explained by this specialist, clearly and well.

Home music, its importance and its development, is the subject of an interesting article by Thomas Whitney Sorvante, a composer and musician of note. In music, as an literature, Mr. Sorvante points out in this article, nothing is so good for family use, and nothing lasts but the best."

Mrs. Francis King, honorary president of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association and another member of the advisory council of Better Homes in America, is the author of article in the same issue dealing with the share of the children of the family in the making of the home garden, how it is to be encouraged, and its importance.

What is probably the most important function of the home—character building—is dealt with by Dr. James Ford, executive director of Better Homes. Dr. Ford is a member of the faculty of Harvard, and is actively in charge of the Better Homes in America movement.

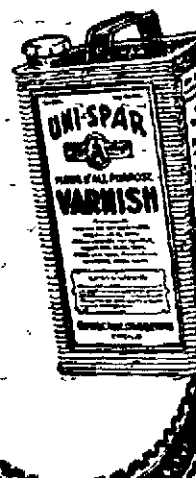

The old method of child training—the peremptory "Do this" or "Don't do that," is described by Dr. Ford. "The more intelligent the child the more certainly it will question the parental injunctions," he writes.

"The wise parent will explain even though it may be annoying or difficult to do so, for only by explanation can the child make the required habit definitely its own."

Precept must be accompanied by good example, the article states. Parents must not themselves decide if they would have their children honest, angry, indolence, selfishness, and many other undesirable traits in pursuit of the ideal of a good character building in children begins in the building by parents of their own character and in so far as parents can bring their own habits under control and develop them, in so far as they can become masters of their own lives and guide their every action with reference to high ideals, their children will be influenced for the good.

Senator William E. Borah, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, sees nothing disturbing in the "monarchical triumph" which attended the election of Field Marshal von Hindenburg as President of Germany. James W. Gerard, ambassador to Germany during the Wilson regime, declared the choice of Hindenburg was "a challenge to the rest of the world." Major General James G. Harbord, who recently returned from South America, has been mentioned as possible successor to Secretary of War Weeks, who has been ill. Cardinal Hayes of New York called the election "the one worst our beloved country may well fear most" in a charity plea broadcast by radio.

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

STRAWBERRIES AND RED RASPBERRIES

The season of 1924 was favorable for the production of small fruit, particularly so for strawberries. In most places good crops of bush fruits were obtained. Red raspberries did not yield as large a crop as growers were led to expect.

We were fortunate in having a small bed in our back yard that produced a large crop of splendid berries, says a writer in the Rural New Yorker. These rows were planted in the spring of 1921. The varieties were Latham and Cuthbert. The ground had been well fertilized with chicken manure. Having access to a plentiful supply of plants, they were spaced one foot apart in the row.

Our object in placing the plants close in the row was to get as much fruiting wood as possible for the crop the succeeding summer. The canes were frequently cultivated and in some cases made a growth of three to four feet the first season. As this variety was quite prone to fall over with the weight of fruit at time of ripening, a single wire was stapled to stakes 30 inches above the ground. The canes were then tied to this wire. Thirty quarts of berries were picked the next summer after planting.

In the early summer before the berries were ripe a good mulching of straw from the chicken house was placed between the rows. This kept down all weeds and most of the plants that ordinarily come up in the space between the rows. Plenty of new canes grew up in the rows for a full crop. There were bent over and covered with straw and cornstalks. The protection thus given was inadequate for the canes killed back almost as much as those that were exposed.

Again the spaces were mulched. The canes were now at the age when they should do their best. Many of them reached a height of nine feet or more, and a diameter in some cases of three-fourths of an inch. They went through the winter of 1923 and 1924 in splendid shape. The pruning was delayed in the spring until the buds began to swell, in order that only live wood should be left for fruiting. One cannot always tell this when pruning early in the spring. Nearly half of the canes were cut off at the ground line to thin out the surplus growth. The remainder were cut back to a height of 60 inches.

Heavy stakes were driven into the ground along the rows at intervals of 16 feet. These were about 42 inches high. Two No. 16 wires were stretched along the row, and stapled together on top of the stakes. The pruned canes were then drawn up between the wires which held them in place. The vines were tied together at intervals of three or four feet.

We left entirely too much wood for ordinary farm or commercial growing, for dry weather comes on usually at the time the berries are ripening, but since we had water available for irrigation purposes we felt secure in that respect. We felt sure that the plants would produce at least 100 quarts. But the storm that swept over our part of the state about the time the plants were in bloom, tore the top out of some huge oak trees and piled up the brush on top of our berry bushes. For quite a while after this the plantation was not very promising, but the remaining canes recovered and we gathered 70 quarts of splendid berries.

Asphaltum Paint Useful to Cover Tree Wounds

It is time for the orchardman to begin his pruning activities and rid his fruit trees of crooked limbs, broken branches, and diseased parts.

"And the period for pruning is between the time leaves fall off up until growth starts in the spring," declares James G. Moore, of the horticultural department of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

When it comes to the real job of removing the worthless portions of any tree, a cut must be made that will leave a wound. Some cuts will vary from a fraction of an inch up to several inches across, depending upon the size of the limb. How is it possible to protect the tree from disease entering through these wounded portions? "Use asphaltum paint," continues Moore, "and protection will be furnished."

An application of the paint does not aid in healing the cut. Its chief purpose is to prevent harmful insects and fruit tree diseases from entering through the exposed sections. Asphaltum paint, when applied, furnishes a smooth, hard-surfaced protection which does not become easily checked. This is an essential requirement if the best results are to be obtained. Fruit trees need to be cared for the same as animals. If a good crop is to be expected next spring, "Give them all the chance that is possible."

PITY IN BIRD LIFE RARELY DISPLAYED

Feathered Creatures, When Hurt, Left to Die Alone.

There is not much sympathy to be found in wild nature. If a bird meets with a mishap it is usually left to get over it without any assistance from its companions. When a bird is taken ill and expects to die you will not find its mate standing by to console with it, but the suffering creature will just sink away to a place of hiding in which it is left to very soon find a new companion. But I have come across a few instances where sympathy was shown. When birds are mated after a short courtship the male is most attentive to his newly won wife and will almost starve himself to offer tit-bits to her," writes Oliver G. Pike in the London Mail.

"The beautiful male bullfinch is one of the best of husbands. A pair of these birds attempted to nest in my garden last spring. The first nest came to an untimely end and a second was built. When this contained young almost ready to fly I heard the two parents calling out in great distress. I hurriedly climbed up the steep bank leading to the nest in a thick hedge, but I was just too late, for a stoat dashed from the nest and disappeared in the thick undergrowth. Three of the young had been eaten, while the fourth was dead outside the nest.

"For days afterward the hen bullfinch sat on twigs in the garden looking most disconsolate, and it was rather beautiful to see the male offer her choice morsels, which he continually searched for. It seemed as if he was doing his best to cheer her up, and it gave me much pleasure when I found out that he had succeeded. For at the end of the week they began a third nest, and with this they were successful in rearing a family.

"It is only natural, however, for a bird to assist its mate during the time of courtship. It is in the winter months, when each bird has to fight its own battle in the grim search for food, that sympathy is rare. I have known only one instance of this.

"In my garden there was a large dog kennel with a flat roof. During the winter months the tablelike top was utilized as a lair for the birds. Many kinds visited us and it was seldom that the table was unoccupied. One morning a new visitor appeared and she was a cripple. This great tit had one leg missing and she had some trouble in balancing her body as she picked up the food.

"The sparrows, for some reason, objected to the presence of this injured bird and drove her off. She made many attempts to obtain a meal, but the others prevented her.

"The next morning she brought with her another great tit and again the sparrows tried to drive her away. In a flash the second great tit set about them, fought the whole flock and kept the board clear while the crippled bird obtained a good meal. On each succeeding visit this bird and knight accompanied her, and such respect did the sparrows have for his fighting powers that she afterward obtained her food in peace."

Lifted by Toy Balloons

On a recent visit to London Lady Feyter, author of travel books, met the old lady who sells balloons at the entrance to Kensington gardens, to bring joy to childhood. She said to Lady Feyter: "I am the old woman Harrie told the world about in 'Peter Pan,' who was nearly carried off by her balloons. Maggie Leary, the old apple woman, who sold apples for forty years by this gate, had to catch me by the handle of her umbrella, or I should have blown away. Lots of people have taken my photograph, and one man paid me half a crown for it. This has been the worst year I've had, but things are picking up. Maggie was here for forty years and I've been here for sixteen."

Evidently she enjoyed her celebrity, for she asked, "When will you come back and photograph me?"—Japan Advertiser.

Bleeding in Disguise

Thomas A. Edison, in a recent interview, declared that darkness was in some ways a blessing.

"The deaf man can hear," he said, "in the darkest quarters. They do not have to listen to horns. They listen, further, when given them a reputation for wit."

"A foreign nobleman once said to a deaf old lady at a dinner party: 'Is Miss Benda a pretty girl?'"

"Yes," the deaf old lady answered, "but she will be when her father, the millionaire coal baron, dies."

Transforming Old Gown Into Something Suitable

Never in the history of fashions have the new styles given more aid to the woman who must transform an old gown into a new one, or must camouflage so that her acquaintances will at least not feel like saying, "If she only would get a new gown!"

First and foremost are the new familiar tunics. It would be a woman lacking very much in resourcefulness who would not take some old gown, skirt, or coat, perhaps turn two into one or make a quick survey of the sales and select therefrom enough new material to make an old frock seem only a distant relative of its former self. And she who is wise enough to pick up such an opportunity will be wise enough to avoid spending too much money on this old frock.

Sometimes in making over a costume one can venture a bit more into the extremes of style than one feels justified in doing when buying a new gown. There are highlights of fashion that are very alluring in the eyes of the present, but which, having seen their most popular days, go out of fashion like a flash, leaving the woman who has invested a great deal in them in a forlorn and discouraged state of mind.

Adventures in dressmaking or dress buying are not for the practically minded woman, whether she can afford them or not. And if they are indulged in by these who cannot afford them, these adventures are left considerably sadder, though wiser.

Shows Value of Flattery

Speaking of police, the female of the species occasionally comes in for its share of responsibility to the joke-smiths. The following yarn tells from the beginnings of the lady-police era:

One of the newly appointed police women saw a carman treating his horse roughly. She went up to him and after remonstrating with him, she handed him a name and address.

"Lord, sir," said the man with a commiserating smile: "If I was to tell you, it would go out of that pretty head of yours before you got to the next corner."

Then he drove off, leaving the policeman's term between conflicting emotions of neglected duties and gratified vanity.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Rats in Fatal Tangle

A group of fair-sized rats was the first thing that Rev. Olney L. Darling of Warren saw when he opened his bedroom, and instead of a mad scramble at his intrusion, the rats were unable to get away. Upon investigation, Mr. Darling found their tails so tangled together that they could not free themselves. The rats had entered the room through a hole, but the last one had not been able to negotiate the opening. Some one ventured the suggestion that the rats had tangled their tails together so they could pull more power to pull the others out through the hole. When killing the rats, the minister called his housewife, so that he might have a witness to corroborate his story.—Boston Globe.

Dempsey to Call On Commission

State Commission Will Again Ask Champion If He Will Fight Willis—Dempsey Will Be Out of the Boxing Game Until 1926 at the Earliest.

By Davis J. Walsh.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, April 28.—By way of limbering up for the rigors and privations of a European trip, Jack Dempsey will step ten fast minutes to an official decision with the New York State Athletic Commission today. It will be a return bout, the commission has gained the newspaper verdict on the prior occasion when it banished the champion to the outer darkness for his neglect to accept the challenge of Harry Willis.

Dempsey will visit the commission accompanied by Tex Rickard, or so he said as late as last night. The commission has received no official notice of Dempsey's appearance at its meeting and the law says a man can change his mind.

If Dempsey proceeds with his intended visit, it will be purely in the guise of a social call but the commission has ideas of its own about the amenities and their observance. Being of sound mind and an inquisitive one, it is likely to ask this question at the outset:

"Will Dempsey fight Harry Willis, and, if so, when?"

From years of repetition, the writer has come to know the Dempsey-Kearns reply verbatim. They will fight Willis, Gibbons or any one. Their business is fighting. When will they do it? Just as soon as a responsible promoter makes an offer that is acceptable. Why isn't Willis's challenge accepted? Well, you'll have to ask Jack Kearns about that. He does the managing, I do the fighting.

Frankly, the visit has no other object than to have the commission take the curse off its banishment of Dempsey without putting the champion to the inconvenience of fighting anyone. The hottest tip of Broadway at this moment is that Dempsey has no intention of returning to the ring until 1926, if at all.

For one thing, he has definitely decided to visit Europe on a honeymoon with the fair Estelle, even going so far as to set May 5 as the date of departure. He will remain abroad anywhere from six weeks to two months, depending on what may develop here.

Rickard, it is understood, has been commissioned to keep an alert eye on the situation here and will cable Dempsey to return if and when such a course may seem advisable. It is said that neither Dempsey nor Rickard anticipate that the action in question will seem advisable. They understand each other perfectly.

Harry Willis may get his chance some day but it is my guess that it will not be with Rickard as the promoter.

Tarrytown Beat Kingston Team

Spectators who attended the Kingston-Tarrytown volleyball ball games at the Y. M. C. A. on Saturday evening had the pleasure of seeing volleyball in its highest form. While Tarrytown defeated the local boys in five out of seven matches, none of the games were one-sided. All points were hard fought, the ball being volleyed back and forth a large number of times before either side could score.

The Kingston Association was represented by Spikers Rob Murray, Chester Dolson and Gordon Craig and Boosters Tom Morrissey, Delancy DeGraff, Arthur Wicks, Clarence Harris and Frank DuPont.

The playing of the Kingston boys was the best it has been during the season and while defeated their was a glorious defeat, for everyone played the game all the time, worked hard and did not give up until the final point was made.

The Tarrytown group, who are the winners of the Westchester county tournament, arrived in Kingston with their best team, which is composed of two exceptionally capable spikers and four clever passers. The Kingston boys did well in holding this team to the following scores:

Tarrytown 15, Kingston 6.
Kingston 15, Tarrytown 6.
Kingston 15, Tarrytown 12.
Tarrytown 15, Kingston 14.
Kingston 15, Tarrytown 10.
Tarrytown 15, Kingston 10.

After the games both teams adjourned to the banquet hall, where refreshments were served and a social time held.

Expect Dempsey To Fight Soon

In California Ring With Renault—Western State Is Attracting Boxers as Gold Dredge Prospectors in 1849.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Los Angeles, April 28.—California—new El Dorado of the cauliflower—will witness the full flush of its second great rush for gold during this summer and fall.

More than 750 boxers have been licensed in the state and huge boxing arenas are springing up over California today like the historic mining towns which came to sight overnight in the days of the first gold rush years ago.

Ever since Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, slipped to sleep Bert Collins, California middleweight, here in seven rounds and thereby collected some $25,000 for the cause, a pastime fighter have been flocking to the land of sunshine and sheaf of greenbacks.

Three outstanding bouts are in the making for California immediately. Jack Dempsey, now the faithful husband may find surcease from household duties this summer to keep an afternoon's engagement in Los Angeles with Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul. A mysterious promoter is said to have offered Dempsey very close to $500,000 to box 35 minutes against the Irishman.

Meet Renault.

The watchful Mr. Jack Kearns, who up to a late hour was still looking after Dempsey's interests, is reported to have failed to way enthusiastic about the Gibbons fight. He believes a bout with Jack Renault would prove a better drawing attraction.

However, it appears in the cards that Dempsey, unable to be Tex Rickard's house guest in the East this summer, will content himself with a mere half million by appearing in defense of his title in Los Angeles.

The two other promised bouts would bring together Mickey Walker and some welterweight contender, and Sammy Mandell, the New York lightweight, and Phil Salvadore, of Los Angeles.

Walker, in the opinion of California promoters, would pack the boys in here almost as thickly as Dempsey, and at least three promoters want to feature him here in an outdoor bout.

Salvadore, who holds a four-round bout decision over Mandell, may covet with the Easterner in Los Angeles, June 6. The bout would be the chief sporting event of the Shriner's convention week and promoters Jack Doyle, Tom Kennedy and Dick Donald have all got lions in the fire seeking the match.

Walker is returning to the coast next month to box "Lefty" Cooper, regarded as quite so-and-so by fans in San Francisco, where the pair are scheduled to meet May 15 in an open-air show.

Cooper is barely known outside of San Francisco and his record includes a defeat at the hands of Joe Simonich, product of a Butte, Mont. butchery. Simonich was easily defeated some time ago by Dave Shade, the Californian, and Walker should kazo "Lefty" without difficulty inside of six rounds.

Jack Root, former light heavyweight champion, one of the owners of the new Olympic Club, which is now completing a $300,000 arena in Los Angeles, may offer a Tommy Gibbons-Gene Tunney bout as its opener.

Tom Kennedy and associates, building a new Hollywood club, are also looking for two likely easterners for a first night affair and Jack Doyle, the Vernon promoter, is anxious to stage a bout with a champion in close corner.

Doyle is regarded by many as the likely slayer of a Los Angeles fight with Dempsey's title at stake.

FEDERALS BEAT VICTORY EAGLES, SCORE 14 TO 5.

Saturday morning at McVey's field the fast stepping Federals defeated the Victory Eagles by the score of 14 to 5. Missouri was on the mound for the Federals, having nine strikeouts to his credit and allowing but a few hits. The lineup for the Federals was as follows:

W. Barry, c; P. Misove, p; J. Smith, 1b; W. Sensipall, 2b; L. McGraff, ss; L. Carpin, 3b; L. Leskie, cf; L. Jordan, lf; M. Mufson, rf.

The lineup for the Victory Eagles was as follows: J. Houghaling, c; R. Fitzgerald, p; W. Bravce, 1b; M. Rosenzweig, 2b; C. Beesmer, ss; P. Gorman, 3b; H. Houghaling, cf; R. Sickler, lf; R. Williams, rf.

The score by innings:

Federals 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Victory Eagles 0 0 2 1 0 2 8

Umpires—Brown and Weis. Time of game—1 hour, 57 minutes.

HUTTON A. C. TRIMMED TERRY BROTHERS' NINE.

The Hutton A. C. defeated the Terry Brothers' nine Sunday, score 10 to 5. J. McEllen was on the mound for the winners and Williams for the losers.

The Hutton team lined up as follows: J. Settle, c; P. Settle, 2b; C. Cotts, 3b; E. Perry, ss; F. Lewis, rf; L. Perry, cf; D. Giam, lf; J. McEllen, p.

Any teams desiring games with the Hutton Company team should call C. Hutton, 35 Lindley avenue.

Box at National Capital.

Washington, April 28.—The national capital will crash into the big game week-end circuit tonight for the first time in sporting history when Johnny Dundee, featherweight champion of the world, meets Homer Boy Fitzsimmons, of Boston, in a ten round bout. Fitzsimmons, a southpaw, is no set up, and a real mill is in prospect.

Walker is returning to the coast next month to box "Lefty" Cooper, regarded as quite so-and-so by fans in San Francisco, where the pair are scheduled to meet May 15 in an open-air show.

Cooper is barely known outside of San Francisco and his record includes a defeat at the hands of Joe Simonich, product of a Butte, Mont. butchery. Simonich was easily defeated some time ago by Dave Shade, the Californian, and Walker should kazo "Lefty" without difficulty inside of six rounds.

Jack Root, former light heavyweight champion, one of the owners of the new Olympic Club, which is now completing a $300,000 arena in Los Angeles, may offer a Tommy Gibbons-Gene Tunney bout as its opener.

Tom Kennedy and associates, building a new Hollywood club, are also looking for two likely easterners for a first night affair and Jack Doyle, the Vernon promoter, is anxious to stage a bout with a champion in close corner.

Doyle is regarded by many as the likely slayer of a Los Angeles fight with Dempsey's title at stake.

How "Rabbit" Maranville Broke Ankle in Practice

Walter "Rabbit" Maranville painfully hurt in the eighth inning of a practice game between the Chicago Cubs and Los Angeles at the Los Angeles ball park. When after a bunt Maranville is seen sliding into third base breaking his ankle, while Michaels of the Cubs is being tagged for the third out. Maranville's falling is unexplained. He came to the Cubs from Pittsburgh, only to be lost again, as the doctors say it will be some time before he can play again.

KOLEHMAINEN GREAT AS PAAVO NURMI

Comparison of Two Runners Is Possible but Indefinite—Never Met.

Twelve years separated the coming of the flying Finns, and therein the life of a sport era is defined.

Little men out of the frozen north of Europe, Hannes Kolehmainen and Paavo Nurmi have come to America, the latter to prove the fitness of Finns more than a decade after the western hemisphere had been convinced by the other.

Nurmi has succeeded, yet those who have followed track performances fail to grant him a higher position than that attained by his countryman in his visit of 1912 and 1913.

Nurmi has run two races in a night to victories—at a mile and at 5,000 meters. Kolehmainen ran seven miles in two races in a single meet.

Paavo has broken four records in a single race. Kolehmainen smashed every standard American mark between three and one-half and ten miles in a single race at Columbia university on November 1, 1913.

Nurmi is a sprinter as well as distance man and can make exceptional time at a half mile. His predecessor ran longer distances and seldom found the necessity to sprint.

Hannes made exceedingly good time for the mile during his regime, being rated at about 4:22, against the record now held jointly by Nurmi and Jole Ray at 4:12, and in a three-mile run was timed at the first milestone in 4:38.

Nurmi has escaped the trials that followed Kolehmainen.

An application from the Finn for membership in the Irish-American A. C. started an amateur war, and after a year in this country, having apparently done nothing to earn his way, the Amateur Athletic union summoned him.

The investigation fell flat. Hannes had his troubles with amateurism. Hannes Kolehmainen was the star of his time, Nurmi of a modern era. Comparison is possible, but indefinite, as they never will meet.

ONE-BASE HITS

(By JACK SIMPSON)

Care of Arms and Legs. A good arm is one of the most essential requirements of a ballplayer, but it is very easy to ruin it, so the utmost care must be taken in order to avoid an injury.

One of the greatest mistakes the average ball player makes is the inclination to "let loose" the first day out. The arms, after being idle all winter, will not stand the sudden strain that is imposed on them. The result is a strained ligament that causes a painful "kink" and very often months of complete rest is needed to restore it to its former condition.

The same might also be said of the legs. A quick movement to the unconditioned Hubs will result in a "knotted" muscle, that will need a great deal of massaging before it will function without pain.

All of these unnecessary ailments can be avoided if care will be taken in the first workouts. Light exercise with the arms and legs is best for the first week, or until they are in a better condition to stand the strain.

BASEBALL SQUIBS

Try says he is going to play in 100 games this season. Health and the ump's permitting.

Hollis Thurston, Chicago White Sox pitcher, has been greatly set back by a sprained ankle.

"Death Valley" Jim Scott, formerly of the Sox, along with Pitcher Hodge, are members of the Pelicans.

Springfield of the Western association has released Harold Spicer, a first baseman of Harrisonville, Mo.

Del Howard, one-time stellar first-sacker of Chicago, is vice president of the Oaks. Ivan, his brother, is manager.

"There is more to Babe Ruth," says a sport writer, "than is popularly supposed." It is beginning, however, to show up in the photographs.

Hooper has not gone back in his hitting and should be a potent factor in the White Sox outfield this year. Harry never seems to get old.

Tom Moran, son of Charley Moran, National league umpire and noted football coach, has been released unconditionally by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Pop manufacturers are reported to be seeking means to stimulate sales. Of course they might try to induce more umpires to get within bottle range.

Fred Toney, the veteran pitcher, formerly with Chicago, New York and St. Louis of the National league, has signed with Nashville of the Southern league.

Chuck Breece, an Indian catcher, has signed with York of the York-New-York-Pennsylvania league. He has been a member of the Onondaga tribe team.

Gorman Wilson, the speedy southpaw, obtained by Brooklyn from Des Moines of the Western league has been optioned out to Reading of the International league.

Nineteen ball players from Maryland are playing in the major leagues this season. Among the leaders are "Babe" Ruth "Lefty" Groves, Jack Bradley, Ed Russell and Johnny Neun.

Of the 23 players in the Philadelphia American league ball club, there is not a single Philadelphian on the team. The Athletic record takes in 15 of the 44 states in the Union. Six of the players came from Maryland.

K. H. S. Athletes Are Kept Busy

Saturday afternoon, the Kingston High School tennis team went to Albany and played a match with the Albany Academy team. Before the match was over it began to rain and the games were called. It was agreed that the scores should be counted as final at the time of the storm. The final scores were: Jansen Fowler (K) lost to Harcourt (A) 5-3 and 10-8. Captain Herzog (K) beat Bridge (A) 6-2 and 6-3. In the third match Paul Coons (K), playing back in his old form was conceded a victory over Green (A) as the score was 2-2, 40 love favor of Coons at the time the games were called. In the last match Powley (K) was beaten by Pope (A) 6-1 and 6-3. Next Saturday afternoon the local team will face the 8 Stephens seconds at three o'clock at the park courts.

Saturday afternoon found the K. H. S. track team in Philadelphia warming up for the Penn Relays, one of the greatest annual track events in the world. There were over four hundred and fifty high schools and colleges represented in the relays this year. Due to a fault of the starter the K. H. S. team took about four seconds more than it would have. The local team was signed up for the outside alley. The starter lined all the men up right but Clark of Kingston (third man), and Peterson of Lawrenceville, who got each other places consequently when DuBols got to Clark he got mixed up and had to retrace to hand him the baton. Kingston finished fourth in this heat, when was the fastest of the afternoon. Which the times were compared it was found that Kingston had finished sixth in a field of fifteen teams. The Kingston team ran as follows: Ed Leverett first, DuBols second, Fred Clark third, and Metcalf fourth. Merceburg Academy won the race in 43.2 thus beating the former interscholastic record by three seconds. Kingston's time was 45.2.

Saturday afternoon also found the K. H. S. baseball team out of town. The locals were beaten by Englewood High School 6-1 at Englewood. The local team was ahead 1-0 up to the seventh inning when the New Jersey boys made a rally which clinched the game for them.

England Returns To Gold Standard

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, April 28.—In a session
marked with cheering and jeering, Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer indicated in the House of Commons today that the government would return to the gold standard and, further, that the Bank of England would be permitted to export gold bullion.

The occasion of the chancellor's declaration was his address to Commons on the subject of the budget.
It was believed by some members that he was delaying important phases of his speech until the market had closed.

"The government is convinced,"
said Churchill, "that our financial position justified a return to the gold standard."

"It is necessary too that the policy of debt repayment be continued. I propose that we raise the sinking fund to its statutory limits."

CONGESTION BIG RURAL PROBLEM

A notable step in abating traffic congestion, taken jointly recently by Chicago and the suburban towns near it,
was brought to public notice at the motor rodeo dinner, held at the Union League club in New York city by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States bureau of public roads.

The motor rodeo dinner is an annual event, tendered to editors, writers and publishers by the highways committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Roy D. Chaplin, chairman of this committee, presided, and Roy L. McCordell spoke as representing the guests.

"One of the chief troubles with both city and rural traffic today," MacDonald said, "is that there is a 'no man's land' between city and rural communities, which chokes traffic in both directions. That is, in the outlying districts of most metropolitan areas there are villages or suburban cities which,
either through lack of funds or for political reasons, do not develop a street system fit to handle the traffic."

"There is such a borderland area in Chicago, where the traffic of fifteen streets pours into three streets, causing congestion to back up all along the line. This is a typical case. Around and in close contact with Chicago, are eighty-nine jurisdictions which are working together on a centralized traffic program which is to be developed as a unified system and all
put into effect at the same time."

"Without some such unifying of traffic progress in all our large metropolitan areas is going to be very difficult, because, as matters now stand, this territory is often divided between
city, state, county, village, township, suburban city and village, making jurisdiction uncertain."

A. J. Brosseau, a director of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, another speaker at the dinner, discussed highway finance, advocating that all motor vehicle fees should be devoted to highway purposes, and that the state should be the sole motor vehicle taxing body.

"The saving in cost of operation to the motor vehicle user who travels over an improved highway is more than enough to maintain the highway," said Brosseau. "So that in effect the user who agrees to maintain it reduces his expenses enough when he travels over an improved highway so that it doesn't cost him a cent."

On this basis, which was supported by the experience of North Carolina and other states, the speaker argued,
the motor vehicle should pay for all highway maintenance, and in some cases, where it was no undue burden,
should also pay part of the construction cost.

"All special taxes on automobile users," he said, "should be devoted to highway purposes—whether for maintenance, reconstruction or construction
—and expended under the supervision of the state highway department. The state should be the sole taxing agency."

Pioneer County Gives

Lesson in Wider Roads

Way back in 1905 Wayne county,
Mich., built the first stretch of improved road. Little realizing that in a few years traffic would have increased many, many times, by virtue of Detroit's becoming the center of the automobile industry, the authorities built only a narrow strip at first.

Soon, however, this pioneer county recognized the need of wider roads
to handle increased traffic efficiently,
and began building all its new pavements wider. To prevent congestion on the earlier strips of road, it widened the old pavements by adding new strips at the side.

Now, as traffic in all parts of the country increases with the extension of paved roads and the increase in motor vehicles, other localities are rapidly recognizing the need of building wider road pavements and widening old ones which are no longer adequate to traffic demands. Those in charge of road building have come to realize that only by having wider roads can they have highways safe for modern heavy travel. They realize that congested traffic on narrow roads
must necessarily result in more accidents and greater loss of life and property.

Major Road Project

One of the major road projects for this year is building roads that will open up the entire Adirondack mountain region to motorists. This project is expected to be well under way by summer and to be virtually completed by the end of 1925 or the summer of 1927.

Hazard of Straight Roads

According to the North Shore Motor club of Wisconsin, straight roads,
with their fascination for the driver who likes to shatter speed laws, are responsible for more automobile accidents than curves, hills or even railroad crossings. The warning is based on a recent Wisconsin accident survey, which discovered that 20.44 of a total of 2,951 road accidents in the Badger state in 12 months occurred on straight roads which offered an opportunity for speeding.

BELLA DOLL was quite old, but she did not know this, for there was no one to tell her. She had been thought very beautiful when she was first given to the little girl who had grown up long ago, but Bella Doll had been carefully wrapped and put in a drawer in the attic.

One day Bella was delighted to be taken out of the drawer and given to another little girl to play with. "She was my best doll," said the grown-up lady to the little girl. "Her face is made of wax, so you must be very careful, because she will break easily."

Bella was very happy for a while with her new mother. She was taken out for a ride every day in a hand-

"Oh, Look, She Has Cried All Over Her Face!"

some carriage and her clothes were taken out of night. She had new ones, and Bella was put in a pretty doll's bed all white and soft.

Her eyes opened and closed and the little girl had never had a doll that could be made to sleep. So for a while Bella was well cared for.

But one night Bella found herself in her carriage and the big clock struck off the hours, but no one came for her.

"I'll freeze and crack," thought Bella Doll. "I never was treated so before."

Early in the morning a big dog
came along and kissed her, but Bella didn't know it was a kiss. She was sure the dog meant to eat her and she wished herself safe again in the drawer in the attic.

But all this was nothing to what happened later, for you see the carriage was on the sunny side of the porch and pretty soon the sun began to shine right on Bella Doll.

She wasn't cold now, but she was far more uncomfortable, for her face began to melt and when by and by the new little mother thought about Bella Doll! I never forgot you; I cry which brought the grown-up lady out of the house to find out what had happened.

"Oh, look, she has cried all over her face!" said the little girl, beginning to cry herself.

"I told you not to leave her in the sun," said the grown-up lady. "Poor Bella Doll! I never forgot you; I never left you out all night. Little girls do not love their dolls as I did
when I was a little girl."

"Can't we have her face made over?" said the little girl.

"No," she is past repairing," said
the grown-up lady, with a sigh. "But I can't put you in the rag bag, Bella Doll. I loved you too much when I was a little girl to throw you away
now. Even if your face is spoiled you are still Bella Doll and you shall go back to the attic and spend the rest of your days where the sun will not melt you and you will not be left out all night to shiver."

"Did it hurt her much, mother, do you think?" asked the little girl.

"How do you think you would have felt if I had left you out on the porch
all night?" was the answer.

"I would have cried and been scared," I guess," said the little girl.

"Perhaps Bella was," said her mother, as she carried Bella up the attic stairs and put her away again in the drawer.

"Well, I am glad to be back," said Bella to a china dog and cat that were in the drawer. "It isn't the same world we knew about when we were played with by the careful little girl to whom we belonged. Little mothers do not love you today as they did when I was a new doll."

"Then I shall never wish again to be taken out of this drawer," said China Dog.

"No, don't," said Bella. "You will be sorry if you get your wish."

Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, April 28.—Industrial stocks displayed considerable strength in the market today and trading was marked by the establishment of some new high prices since the decline of last week, as well as by the marking up of new high prices for the year by a few of the most active shares. A rise of 21 points in Commercial Solvents and Cast Iron Pipe and advance of 4 to 10 points in the Maxwell, Mack Trucks, Inland Locomotive, United States Steel and other stocks was principally at the expense of a call money rates to 3 1/2 per cent and expectation of a strong earnings statement by United States Steel were also in favor of the bulls.

Interest was largely confined to
the motor and industrial stocks,
with occasional spurts in the railroad and copper stocks. Mack Trucks and Maxwell Motors led the motors, with General Motors making a good response to the continuance of the six per cent dividend rate on the common stock.

After reaching higher prices, Seaboard Air Line, Frisco and other active railroad shares lapsed into inactivity.

Most of the specialty stocks which have been conspicuous in recent trading also joined the inactive class.

THE WHYS AND WHEREFORES

—OF THE—

KINGSTON DEALERS USED CAR EXCHANGE, INC.

Today the Used Car Market is equally as active as the New Car Market. Just as the new car market increases, so does the Used Car Market grow. But the New Car is produced to sell at a certain stipulated figure, while the Used Car had no selling price.

The Old Method

The New Way

THE OLD METHOD of establishing trade-in values without thought of re-sale value has been disastrous.

THE NEW WAY affords the used car owner an accurate and reliable service on used car values and protects him against unscrupulous manipulation.

The Kingston Dealers' Used Car Exchange, Inc., is formed by the leading automobile dealers of Kingston and is operated without net profit.

After the car is taken by the Exchange it is carefully reconditioned, repainted if necessary and offered for sale at a fair price previously established. The purchaser buys this car guaranteed with the battery guaranteed for six months.

THE PUBLIC CAN BUY WITH CONFIDENCE

We cordially invite you to come down and look our cars over whether you buy or not.
